A portion of the profit from selling Americana bracelets was donated by 1972 Sally Lockett, of Lockett's Boutique in Sedalia, and Brighton Collectibles, to the after school instrumental music strings program held at Heber Hunt Elementary. 1971 Barbara Schrader, a retired music educator, with the help of Michelle Gilger, music educator at Heber Hunt, volunteer their time to provide this opportunity for youngsters to learn to play stringed instruments. Lockett's and Brighton channeled their donations through the Foundation's restricted funds process.
